ABSTRACT

The invention provide methods and code for better detecting 3:2 pulldown or other video formats. In one respect, embodiments of the invention improve the way in which fields of video data are compared. In another respect, embodiments of the invention provide pattern matching techniques and code for processing the field difference data.